REMARKS

About a month or so ago, the Protocol Branch became involved with menu selection and seating arrangements for official meals hosted by the DCI. Our involvement was the result of a suggestion to him by Harry Fitzwater--in an attempt to solve some of the DCI's complaints about the EDR. I asked to talk with the DCI prior to assuming any responsibility for his official meals, and we had a good talk about food, drinks, etc. Since then, I have been working out his menus in accordance with hints received during that meeting.

Attached is the menu and seating arrangement I had planned and given to the EDR for the luncheon the DDCI was to host [redacted] on 20 May. I understand that you will now host that luncheon on 18 May. May we go ahead and use the menu and seating as planned? I should point out that the papaya as a first course was selected only because the DCI likes papaya and can of course be changed. (

After assuming the responsibility for overseeing the DCI's official meals, I had intended to ask Admiral Inman if he would like us to oversee his also. With the announcement of his departure, however, I decided it best not to interfere with current procedures for DDCI functions.

I would appreciate your guidance as to whether you wish our assistance for official meals after you assume your responsibilities as DDCI. If so, I would also appreciate the opportunity to get your ideas/preferences for carrying out these functions. (I would also share with you the DCI's comments.)

MEMORANDUM, JR: Admiral Inman

Attached is a stab at a seating plan for the DCI's dinner on Monday, 10 May. I consulted with State and [redacted] re order of precedence. I also talked at length with [redacted] about how to place each person. The rationale for the head table is that each person is a participant in the evening's program. In selecting a "host" for the other tables, I took into consideration that this appears to be a CIA-DOD seminar. Thus, General Jones at Table #1 as "host." After much struggling, my advice from [redacted] was to let you look at it and make suggestions/corrections.
